Why Having the Conversation Matters

Consider the following facts:

1. When asked whether or not having an end-of-life conversation is important, 60% of people say yes.
2. When asked whether or not having an end-of-life conversation is important, 90% of people say yes.
3. 27% of people say no.
4. 23% of people say no.

Thinking about your health care wishes when you are young is so important.
An advance directive allows you to document your wishes and choose someone you can trust to make health care decisions on your behalf if you are unable to speak for yourself.

For more information, visit: www.honoringchoicesnd.org

(701) 989-6228